Meaning of the Crescent. The Turkish crescent, although now regarded as essentially Mohammedan in significance, was, it appears, of Christian origin. A creseent moon was the emblem of the Byzantine empire and of the Eastern church. The Turks adopted it as a badge of triumph after the capture of Constantinopie in 1453. With reference to the crescent, the story of the origin of the ereseent-shaped Vienna roli is worth recalling. It arose in the sixteenth century, when the Turks were besieging Vienna. Failing to carry it by assault, they began to mine the walls. At that period the city's bakehouses were in the walls under the fortifications, and when the mines were almost through the sound of the work was heard in the underground bakehouses and an alarm was given. To celebrate this event the bakers of Vienna adopted the Turkish emblem as the form in which to moid and bake their bread.

AUTHOR'S DEBUT AS ACTOR THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION

Not an Especially Prominent Part, but at Least He Could Say He Was "on the Stage."

Jules Eckert Goodman, otherwise known as the dramatizer of "Treasure Island," has schieved fame at last. He has gratified his lifelong ambition [much at so low a price, and appeared in his play as an actor. The big event came off at Mount Vernon, his home town, during the tryout of "Treasure Island." Goodman had heen kept in ignorance of the method hy which the remarkable wave scene was obtained when the good ship Hispaniola is cut adrift by little Jim Hawkins, so on the memorable ovening the author slipped in back of the scenes and stood watching the workmen getting the "set" ready for the ocean. Goodman shrank back suddenly into a dark recess of the stage when he noted the approach of the stago manager. The manager eyed then selzed him roughly by the shoul-

"Here, you," the director said. "Get under that groen canvas and shake the cloth like a wave."

A few minutes later Goodman re joined his friends out in front. "Did you see me?" he demanded eagcrly. "I've been acting. I was a wave."

Sung by NORA BAYES, in the New Musical Play

PRINCESS TO-DAY

Adopted for the screen by Lois Weher. Did you ever cry from sheer happiness? Did you ever laugh , with a lump in your throat, while little thrills of joy swept over you? Dld you ever see a photo-play so sweet and wholesome that the effect was that of a mental bath?

Were you ever so lifted out of yourself that you forgot to think of your thoughts and feel of your feelings? Can you imagine a play so strong as to make you oblivious to your surroundings, and yet so tender as to be comparable only to the dainty fragile things of life?

Did you ever see a play so satisfying that you wanted to get away by yourself and think about it; to live its scenes over again in memory? A picture so "altogether lovely" you would rather leave the theatre than to have your inward vision destroyed by the next play on the program?

SEE THIS WONDERFUL PHOTOPLAY TO-DAY. ADMISSION 5c AND 10c.

Human Life Cheap.

Human life is pretty cheap in the cities of the South. The most murderous city in all the world is Memphis, Tenn., where 63.7 persons out of every 100,000 lose their lives by violence, according to statistics for the decade 1904-1913, prepared by the Spectator, an insurance journal.

Six other southern cities hold records for "killings," while New York, with its enormous population, is a peaceful, law-abiding place, ranking only sixteenth out of the thirty registration cities used. The thirty cities, arranged in the order of "killings" together with the rate per 100,000 population, are: Memphis, 63.7; Charleston, S. NO SCREENS

To Saloons on Sundays And Holidays.

The new law applying to saloons becomes effective at once and saloon men have been busy arranging to take down screens on Sunday as the entire interior of saloons must be exposed to view when saloons are closed by law. Hopkinsville has had a similar ordinance for several years, but it only provided that an opening should be make through which the interior could be inspected from the outside. The state law is much stricter.

WRITE LETTERS And Defendants Win In Both

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are weil often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genulne?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the fuil and written consent of the woman

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. ls that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from dispiacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering wo-men feel when restored to health; their keen desire to heip other women who are suffering as they did.

By JANE OSBORN.

"May I sit in your nice patch of shade, Mr. Farmer?" The girl, pinkciad, delightfully tanged and laden with magazines and flattering papers, had aiready spread herself under the shade of the ione apple tree that was allowed to grow unmolested in the middle of the newly-mown hayfield.

"It's not my tree and it's not my shade," the man in overalls drawled, with the unwillingness to answer a question directly that was characteristic of that section of the country. "But if it were mine I'd give you a deed for life on that particular spot of shade. You see, Mr. Owens owns the farm. I'm just-

"Of course, Mr. Owens doesn't object," the girl laughed, gathering a neat collection of stones from the ground where she was sitting. "You are Mr. Owen's new help, aren't you? And your name is Tom Fenn," said the girl pleasantly, opening a portfolio that was part of her equipment.
"Yes, and you're Miss Betty Brown and you are visiting your aunt at the next farm. I heard the Owons folks taiking ahout you this morning. But may I ask what you are going to do with those stones?"

"Certainly," the girl smiled, "and I'li teli you. I am about to hegin my morning's writing out here under this tree and I want the stones to keen down the papers. The chier troubie with writing outdoors is that the papers hiow about, but I simply can't get my thoughts to work in one of those stuffy farmhouse rooms. I ean't the farmer man, sitting day after day even read in there."

The farmer had dropped the bucket girl's feet.

"You wouldn't earo much for that," she explained. "i don't imagine 5,2 2,53 Ridgeway Norris is read much in this part of the country. in fact, I couldn't understand him myself at first. But he is all the rago with real writers. I try to read a little before I start to write. He is so stimulating."

"What did you say his name was?" The farmer had dropped the hook and stood looking eagerly at the giri. "No, I guess we don't go in for anything 1,000.00 like that up here. Ho's what you'd eali a highbrow, isn't he?"

"Oh, decidedly," smiled the girl, he ginning the morning's operations hy putting long, tapering points on the collection of pencils she had brought with her.

"The Owens folks didn't say that you were a writer."

The girl laughed. "They don't know it. I never soid anything-that is, anything to hrag about—and I don't taik much of my amhitions. But I'm crazy about it." The girl pressed the book hy Ridgeway Norris to her and gave a delightful little laugh of happiness "Just think of what a wonderful thing it is! Just think what a man like Norris can do with just those twenty-six little letters of the alphahet-makes you laugh or cry, fills you with dread, suspicion, joy or remorse to suit his whim, and all with those funny little

"'Tis queer," said the farmer mediwithdrawal after 30 days, the well-that way before. I have sometimes thought"-he was eautious in the suggestion-"that I might do a little writing myself. There is one story I could tell that I think would make folks sit up and take notice. If I only had sometion to "Lippincott's Magazine" and one to help me. Say," he added with a smile that fascinated Betty, "maybe you'd help me? You are a heginner, too. Well, suppose we begin together. I can't get much time off, but I'll ask Mr. Owens ahout giving me two or three hours every morning. Work is a little slack anyway. I guess he'li let me."

Betty kuit her hrows ever so slightly and theu something in the keen young face of the farmer reassured her. "I am sure I should enjoy it," she said. "Even if we don't get very far, it will at least give me a new point of view."

The next morning at the appointed hour Betty found her farmer collaborator seated under the tree in the shade. He was neatly putting points on the assortment of pencils that he explained they let him have cheap at the general store.

"You see," he told Betty, as she spread her cushion down on the grass and arranged the folds of her dainty frock about her. "I have got the stones collected." He pointed to a pile of the most symmetrical stones he had heen able to gather in the field. "So far, I think I am tearning weit. Now, what is the next thing to do? Have you got that highhrow book that you were telling me about?"

Betty explained that she had decided Ridgeway Norris ought to he left at home. "We must forget that anyone ever wrote a story hefore we did. We must fill our minds so full of I wish to say to my friends that I the characters and the plot we are are to go fifty-fifty, aren't we? Now you tell me that plot of yours."

The farmer man was reticent. He told Betty that it was the first time in this life that he had ever spoken to anyone of the strange stories that came into his thoughts. And as he told it—a story weird in its comcountry neighborhood and tenso emotional situations, simple in the actual events it related and in the characters was tensely dramatic—Betty forgot about the apple tree and the meadow. The even forgot that she was Betty, pink end and poetly, and that she was listening to the faltering voice of a poor country laborer.

"If we can only get it into the story as you have told it to me!" she exclaimed, when the man had finished. 'But that's where the art comes in. That is where experience and training count. If a man like Norris could only handle it."

A shadow of disappointment eame over the young man's face. "I thought you were going to forget those highbrows. I thought you and I wore going to do something original, going to heat them at their own game. Now here goes. I don't know how to hegin stories or how to end them like those regular writers, so don't let's have a beginning. Just let's start right Underwear. in at the places where you begin to catch your breath and wonder what's Boing to happen next. Here, I've got it—" The young man's eyes flashed with excitement. His manner of diffidence and reticence had vanished. "Get the paper and write what I tell you. We can do the polishing later. You can show me how to do that."

Every morning Betty Brown and her farmer sat under the apple tree. Some days the farmer would he all animation, all ideas, as he had been the day thoy began. Other days he would be Millinery, dull and discouraged. He would he dull and discouraged. He would be in a murderous frame of mind, when Rain Coats, he wished to go back over the fabric of the story and weed out the charaeters he had ereated. Then Betty would be at her best. Then she would take the thread of the story where the man had left off, adding touches here and there and hringing order and plausibility out of the chaos in which the man had left the tale. It was small wonder that Betty and ir the shade of the solitary apple tree, working together over the thing that he was carrying and had stooped in all the world that interested them to nick up the hook that lay at the most, dreaming and planning together, and groping away to bring to a realization their dearest dream-it was small wonder that Betty, who was very pretty in spite of the fact that sho were pince-nez and had ambitions, A MONTHLY MAGAZINE and Tom Fenn, who in spite of his overalis and his swartiny skin possessed a pair of frank brown eyes and a deai of rugged charm, should enjoyment of each other's society,

"But how shall we manage," Betty asked one day after the usual preilminarics-aiways more or less the same and yet always a little different from anything else since the world hegan-"how shall we manage? I'd share your life with you anywhere. Tom, hut I would be too much of s hurden-at present. If you had a fitthe farm of your own it might be dif Subscription Price $2 a Year. ferent."

"We can huy a farm with the money we get from the story."

Betty expiained how hopeiess it was to expect a saie from their first story ed by this paper. or to expect, even if it were soid, enough to make a first payment on a farm. Tom's optimism would permit no doubting. And so it was agreed that if the story were sold, even at a very iow figuro, Betty would consent to wed the farmer man and trust to good fortune for the rest.

So the story was finished and Betty typed it on her little portable machine at the farmhouse and, handing the manuscript to Tom to earry to the post office, she resigned her lot to the decision of the publisher's readers. And Betty knew by experience that when puhiishers return manuscript they are not very prompt.

But within ten days Tom flourished an envelope from the publishers gleefully before Betty's face as they sat at the old trysting place under the apple

"You see, I had the audacity to open the manuscript before I posted it and slip in a little note for myself. That's why they sent it to me instead of to you." But Betty was reading:

"In our opinion, it is quite the hest thing you have done. You have got more of the real smack of the soil, more of real flesh and blood, into this than ever hefore. It is just what was needed to make your stories as suecessful with the averago reader as they already are with the critical. Please accept our humble congratulations.'

Then, as Betty's eyes dropped to the lower left-hand side of the page, she read the name that told the story-"Mr. Ridgeway Norris."

"They are right, too, dead right," the man in farmer's garh was saying. What you said about my other stuff heing hard to understand was right. That's why I ieft the erowd and got into these jeans and followed the plow. But that wouldn't have helped at all, dearest little collaborator in all the world. What I wanted was a real flesh-and-hiood woman to show me the way. And we'll sign the book Betty and Ridgeway Norris."

USING THE EGGPLANT

VARIETY OF WAYS IN WHICH IT MAY BE SERVED.

This Favorite Vegetable of Southern France Has Possibilities That Probably Are Not Sufficiently Appreciated Here.

The eggplant, well seasoned and earefully eooked, may give in many disgulses many varieties to the menu. Many of the reelpes given below are from southern Franco, where the eggplant is the favorite vegetable. When choosing an eggpiant select one of medium size and firm, otherwise it may be too ripe and full of grains inside, ilowever great the virtues of the eggplant may be, remember that by Itself it is quite tasteless; so season and season well.

Eggplant Salad.—Put in the oven one eggpiant, five green peppers and two tomatoes. You will bake the tomatoes first, then the peppers, and the eggplant last. Gradually skin, grain and drain off the above vegetables. Use a silver knife. Arrange in a dish. On a moderate fire in a haif cupful of olive oil fry a small onion eut lnto small pieces and half a cupful of olives stoned and cut into pieces. When the onion is slightly brown add everything to the dish. Sait and pepper to taste and add two tablespoonfuls of good wino vinegar. To be eaten cold.

Broiled Eggplant.—Cut the eggplant In two lengthwise. Put in a marinato composed of two tablespoonfuls of ollve oll, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper and some parsiey. Leave it to marinate for an hour or more. Broll and serve with the marinate.

For Fritters.-Soak the pieces two hours in milk; dry and fry, using the following recipe for fritter batter: One cupful of liour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, one-fourth eupful of milk, two eggs, one tablespoonful lemon juice. Sift the dry ingredients; add the weilbeaten eggs, lemon juice and milk. Beat well. Preparo a few hours ahead.

Stuffed Eggplant.-Cut the eggplant lengthwise. Make incisions with a knife, sait and let stand for an hour. Drain off the water; cut the puip and fry it for a few minutes in oil. Pound well; add four tablespoonfuls of pounded ham, a teaspoonful of parsiey, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with crumbs, to which may be added some parmesan. Put over it a little oil and bake in an oiled pan for an hour. Of course you may use butter instead of oil, but the olive oil blends Itseif better with tho eggplant. If instead of ham you uso hashed mutton, cooked rice and a bit of garlie and pimento you may caii this dish "eggplant a ia Turcque.

Eggplant and Tomatoes.-Peel the eggplant; cut lengthwise in pleces onehalf inch thick. Salt, let stand and dry. Put in a pan; cover with a wellseasoned tomato sauce. Cover the pan and cook on a moderate fire for an Hasty Pudding.

This Is a Scotch recipe for an economicai breakfast dish, and quickly made, as its name indicates. The inthe latter butter may be substituted if preferred.

Put one pound of minced suet in saueepan, set on the stove and bring slowly to boiling point, then stir in eight handfuls of oatmeal (medium quailty). Let this boil for one minute, stirring ali the time, then pour in one teacupful of boiling water and continuo stirring for another minute, when tho pudding will have thickened and be ready. Add salt to taste.

It is quite as nico heated up again, elther in saucepan or under the griff. it is usually eaten with oatcake in Home-Made Beef Tea.

Cut haif-pound of iean beef into very smali pieces: do not have a grain of fat on it; put lnjo a bottle that has a large opening (aa olivo or horseradish bottle will be nice); put la half-cupful cold water and cork tight; set this in a basin of cold water and place on fire where it will come to a bolling point but not boil; keep at this temperature for two hours, then strain and season with sait.

Clam Water.

Wash thoroughly one quart clams in shelis. Cover the bottom of a twoquart stewpan with cold water. Put in the clams, cover and heat gradually until the shelis open. Strain the liquor obtained through a fine cloth. The stomach will often retain clam water, given by the half-teaspoonful when other foods fail.

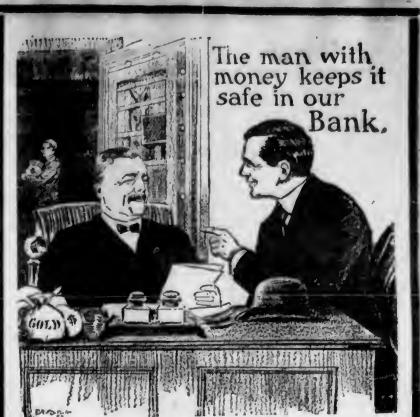

Toasted Corn.

An improvement over bolled corn is toasted corn, which has a much more delicious flavor. After boling the ears six minutes, so as to cook them par-Erln, and for Louisville, Cincinnati tially, remove to a bread-toaster and place over hot coals, turning until they are browned eveniy.

> Drinks for the Sick. Appie water, barley water, clam water, rice water, toast water, lemoaade, flaxseed iemonade (for throat and lung trouble).

When ironing Calicos. Dark callcoes should be froned on the wrong side with irons that are not too hot.

For Rusty Range. Use sandpaper to remove spots of rust from your gas or coal range.

The First Event of The Season Which Presents The Correct Styles In MILLINERY AND APPAREL FOR SPRING

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

MARCH 22ND AND 23RD

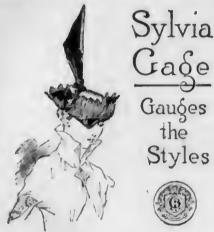

Spring, according to the calendar of Fashions, will be inaugurated Wednesday, March 22nd. In honor of this occasion we present our annual Spring Review of Fashions, featuring the handsomest and best developed styles created for the new season. This Spring, plans have been made on a more generous scale than here-tofore so it will undoubtedly prove the most interesting occasion of the season. 1916 will, in all probability, be referred to as the period "When Fashion Was In Flower." Never before in our history have Fashion for Spring been more beautiful. The new Millinery, Coats, Suits and Costumes are bewitchingly handsome!

WE EXTEND A CORDIAL INVITATION TO ALL TO ATTEND THIS STYLE EVENT AND BENEFIT BY THE STYLE KNOWLEDGE IT WILL GIVE YOU

THE=

Spring Millinery

Speaks Well for the Artistic Designers.

Each model presents an independent thought. No two closely resemble each other, and yet at the same time all are equally attractive. High bonnets from which ribbon branch out in all directions, are favored by some. Further on we come to the Spanish Sailors—adorned with simple wreath of Spring Blossoms or just a novelty band. Still others, too numerous to mention, feature new Fruits and Berries, Nuts and such garnitures as have never before been seen. The early spring flower hat is now a thing of the past and we are ready to show you "Real Millinery," especially planned to demonstrate our style superiority.

Blouses

Most original effects; some quite simple, others more elaborate. All the new Silk and Wash material destined for popularity this Spring and Summer are displayed in greatest variety obtainable.

Display of Dresses

Exclusive models of choicest materials developed into the newest dress fashions, introducing many lovely shades of blue, green, grey and etc.

A GATHERING OF

New Suits For Spring

That Compare Favorably With the Finest

The New Suits are really beautiful to view—unquestionably the smartest garments presented for several seasons. The outline has changed decidedly. The coat is, in many instances, quite short and has a natural waistline. The skirt is short too, but the shortage is made up for in fullness. Of course, there yet remains much to talk about in the weaves and colorings of Fabrics which would make interesting reading, but we prefer to have you come and see. Your visit will be an enjoyable one.

THE "PROPER"=

Coats for Spring

A notable display of cleverest top coats, sport coats and utility coats in every new material, attractively styled neatly trimmed and modestly priced.

Attractive Footwear

At Very Attractive Prices.

The Shoe or the Pump, whichever the case may be, sets off the entire costume. In fact, the short swinging skirts that are in style this year make the 1916 Footwear more conspiciuous than in the past. Come in and see our best collection of Spring Footwear and Oxfords in exactly the lasts and leathers that will be worn during the coming season.
